

A stylized illustration of a space station or satellite against a blue background. The central structure consists of two cylindrical modules connected by a truss-like bridge. Each module has a large, rectangular solar panel array extending from its side. The solar panels are depicted with a grid pattern. The entire structure is oriented horizontally. In the bottom right corner, there is a small, dark blue circular shape, possibly representing a planet or a distant star.

END